

The school teachers loved our old homestead
As a refuge, at the close of the day
After lessons and problems and questions
They could leave all behind, and there stay.

There was music - perhaps not the greatest -
But was sweet to our listening ears
As they raised happy voices in singing
To the sweet tones of the organ.